

CTPAT - Supply Chain Security Policy

May 2025

J. M. Rodgers Co., Inc., and our NVOCC, Trans Ocean International, Ltd. (T.O.I.L), are fully committed to the principles of supply chain security, as defined in the agreement we signed to become a member of the joint trade-government partnership, known as CTPAT – the Customs-Trade Partnership against Terrorism.

We became certified members of CTPAT in May 2003. Twenty-two years later, we are as firmly committed as ever. The goals of CTPAT are worthy. The U.S. government formed a voluntary partnership with the trading community to secure our supply chains and borders from terrorist activity.

We recognize that a supply chain of goods destined for the U.S. is only strong as its weakest link. We are committed to doing our part and we encourage our business partners and clients to join us in this pursuit.

This policy is intended to provide all JMR and employees with the support of senior management and the framework and training to continuously redefine supply chain security. It is also intended to partner with our partners and clients, alike, to mitigate the threats of criminal activities such as drug trafficking, terrorism, human smuggling, and illegal contraband.

James Rodgers
James Rodgers, CEO

